

TRENTON YOUTHS PLEAD GUILTY TO BURGLARY CHARGE

Robert S. Seaman, 21, and Albert L. Sanna Sent To White Hill

OTHER COURT CASES

Robert S. Mooney, Bristol, Pleads Guilty to Driving While Drunk

DOYLESTOWN, July 6 — Two Trenton youths who have been serving time in a New Jersey reformatory at Annandale, pleaded guilty in Bucks county court on Tuesday to a charge of burglary at the home of Charles Henry McCue, 127 Grove street, Morrisville, on April 15, 1950.

They are Robert Stanley Seaman, 21, of 834 Melrose street, and Albert L. Sanna, of 313 Academy street, both of Trenton. They were both committed to the Pennsylvania State Industrial School at White Hill, Pa., for an indeterminate sentence, by President Judge Hiram H. Keller.

McCue, an artificer, testified that he had a number of guns at his home for repair and storage, on April 15, 1950 when the defendants came to his home at night for the purpose of stealing some guns to hold up the Trenton Transit Company. McCue fired a shot at the time and the bullet struck Sanna, who is now crippled in the right arm.

Seaman and Sanna were arrested and committed in New Jersey on a charge of conspiracy to hold up the Trenton Transit Company and were committed to Annandale. They were recently released there and turned over to the Bucks county authorities.

Both Seaman and Sanna admitted that they went to the McCue home for the purpose of stealing guns. One of the defendants knew McCue. The prosecutor in the case was Chief of Police John S. Davis, of Morrisville.

Sanna served in the United States

THE WAR

TOKYO, July 6 — (INS) — Allied airmen were ordered tonight to refrain from attacking a highway down which a Communist delegation is scheduled to start moving in a few hours toward Kaesong for an initial Korean truce meeting Sunday. The five-mile radius around Kaesong itself was also ordered exempted from UN air strikes. But Allied airmen were directed to continue their attacks elsewhere and they struck at additional hundreds of Red vehicles streaming toward the war front. Allied officials indicated they expect the formal armistice conference to begin Tuesday, July 10, following the Sunday preparatory session. They announced first that news correspondents would be flown from Tokyo to Seoul two days before the main cease fire meeting begins. A second announcement said the press will be flown to Seoul Sunday. Newsmen are expected to be barred from the Kaesong area itself until the ceremony of signing a truce pact is held.

Service will be held in Bethel A. M. Church on Monday at two p. m., with burial in Bristol Cemetery.

Survivors are his wife, Thelma, and a daughter, Cordelia, of Lancaster; his father, Thomas Gibson, Sr., of Bristol; and the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Nathaniel Dean, Mrs. James Jones, Mrs. Clarence Jenkins, Mrs. Eugene Ford, Mrs. William Spearman, Mrs. Garrison Hines, Horace, Nathan and Joseph Gibson.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Safe conduct for the United Nations party that will meet a Communist delegation at Kaesong Sunday to arrange for cease-fire talks was guaranteed by the leaders of the North Korean and Chinese troops. General Ridgway will send an officer from the Marines, the Air Force and the South Korean Army and two interpreters from Seoul to meet the Communists, who will drive from Pyongyang in jeeps. Should truce talks be ended by July 15 the United Nations General Assembly probably would meet about Aug. 1 to approve the terms. There was only light scattered action on the Korean front, although allied bombers struck heavily.

A resolution to investigate loables of foreign governments, particularly the "China lobby," will be introduced today by Senator Morse. It was believed Congress also would look into reports that influential Chinese had cornered the soy bean market just before the Korean conflict began.

The World Court, 10 to 2, asked that the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company be restored to full control of its properties pending a final solution of the dispute and that Britain and Iran set up a board to see that the court's order was carried out. Britain may appeal to the United Nations Security Council should Iran reject the order.

The new French Assembly met for the first time with no indication that a government could be formed soon.

Hungary ordered two United States diplomatic aides expelled within 24 hours. An American flyer who had landed in Czechoslovakia by mistake said he had been kept sitting in a chair for 22 hours while being intermittently questioned.

The House began debate on an economic controls bill as the Administration opened a drive for a stronger measure than Congress was disposed to enact. President Truman refused to compromise on price controls and Economic Stabilizer Johnson said any bar on future rollbacks would raise living costs $1 a day for every family in the nation. The National Association of Manufacturers proposed a "consumption tax" levied against manufacturers of all items except food.

ADMITS ROBBERY AT ANDALUSIA

Robert L. Martin Given 2 1/2 Years in Eastern "Pen" As Minimum Term

A SPITEFUL CRIME

DOYLESTOWN, July 6 — Addressing Robert L. Martin, 23, prior to sentencing him on burglary and larceny charges, Judge Edward G. Blester said "If the Court could only adjust your background, we would be very glad to do it."

Revealing a background trail of childhood escapes from three orphanages, Martin told the Court he had no home and no relatives except one aunt, whom he had seen once. Charged with having burglarized the gas station and apartment of Joseph Bushek, of Andalusia, in January, Martin admitted the theft of $50.84 in cash, five Pennsylvania inspection stickers, fountain pen and jacket, because he was "out of a job and needed money."

He also admitted breaking up the eating place of James Flood, of Andalusia, "out of spite," but denied stealing anything except some chewing gum. "I broke up Flood's place," he declared, "because he had me arrested once before for stealing."

Also while on the witness stand, the prisoner surprised the Court by admitting thefts of gas stations en route to Florida in a stolen car after escaping from Norristown, where he had been placed for observation.

Apprehended after one day in the land of sunshine, Martin was released.

PRE-FABRICATED HOUSES ARE DISAPPROVED

Doylestown Council Finds They Do Not Meet Building Code Requirements

TOUR OF INSPECTION

DOYLESTOWN, July 6 — Following the suggestions of its zoning and building regulations committee, Borough Council has disapproved the erection of pre-fabricated houses on a tract of land proposed for annexation to the borough on the former Smith Dairy farm, near the present auction headquarters.

The owners of the land had offered the site for annexation and at the same time stated that they would like to erect pre-fab homes on a portion of the site. The type home proposed was explained at the last meeting of Council.

The committee reported that a trip had been made to Paoli, where similar type homes were erected. Chairman Charles W. Miller, and other members of the committee recommended that the homes would not meet the requirements of Doylestown's building code and for that reason they were not recommended.

The homes at Paoli were attractive, the committee reported, but are very flimsy and would not meet the requirements of the local code.

Secretary C. Leroy Frack was authorized to notify owners of the land that if they desire to have the land annexed, it will be satisfactory to Council, but the type of home the promoters had suggested will not be approved. Council felt that the local regulations must be enforced.

Past-President's Pin Is Given To Sobatzki

Retiring president Sobatzki thanked the club for the gift, and the different committee heads and members who worked during his term as president.

LETTERS ARE GRANTED IN SHROUT ESTATE

Late Nelson Court Resident Names Widow As The Executrix

SOME OTHER WILLS

DOYLESTOWN, July 6 — Clara Shroud, 2414 Nelson Court, Bristol, the widow, has been granted letters of administration in the estate of Walter A. Shroud, Bristol. The decedent died October 21, 1950, and left a son, Theodore, and daughter, Sarah Ann, besides his widow. The estate was valued at $50.

Ruch, Upper Bucky, would have been the residuary heir. Real estate consists of 24 acres in Bridgeton township. The will was dated Sept. 6, 1947, and the daughter was named executrix.

DEMAND MADE ON GROCERS FOR BREAD

Orders to Philadelphia and Allentown Bakeries Are Increased

NO TRUCK DELIVERIES

With the strike of bakery truck drivers in the Trenton, Newark, Paterson, N. J., area, affecting this section, a heavier demand for bread is thrown on the stores in this area. Individuals who have depended upon door-to-door deliveries, and who have through the driver strike been robbed of their daily bread supply, have been including bread in their store orders during the past few days.

Bristol merchants have thus far been able to meet the demand, however, by increasing their orders to the bakeries.

Great A & P Company officials here state that they had sold out their bread supply an hour before closing time on both Monday and Tuesday, but on Wednesday were able to care for the demand through increased orders to the A & P bakeries. With the orders enlarged, officials claim they can take care of all demands.

Edward Wallace, Mill street grocer, says he is getting all the bread he needs from Philadelphia sources, and not depending on Trenton supplies. One large baking firm, with bakeries in Allentown and Philadelphia, is shipping bread to the Wallace store from the Allentown bakery. "We sold more bread yesterday than usual," states Mr. Wallace.

MARSHALL, MAN OF MYSTERY

(PART TWO)

Early in the year 1940, Republican hopes were probably higher than at any other time in the last two decades. The late Glenn Frank had written a complete textbook on how to win the coming campaign. The third-term issue looked like a sure-fire bet, and the Democrats had wound up in a position where, as the Republicans then viewed it, they had nothing in sight save the "suicidal" course of re-nominating Roosevelt for his "impossible" third-term bid.

But only a month or so before the Republican convention, the Republican Party was blitzed by a series of steps revolving around a project which General Marshall had prepared. That was his re-armament program, drawn up by him as Chief of Staff—which position, moreover, it has never been disputed he owned to the personal choice of President Roosevelt.

Obviously, no one can tell us today just what went on in the political conferences which preceded and led up to the bombshell defense address of President Roosevelt. Most of the principals in those discussions now are dead, almost certainly no authentic records were kept, and the testimony of any one participant probably would be challenged by others. None of the survivors, unfortunately, is in a position where his veracity might not be questioned.

Therefore one can only guess whether Marshall's brain (which, after all, is not too distantly related to that of Chief Justice John Marshall, who so profoundly affected the course of the United States government with his own thought processes a century and a half ago) first visualized the political impact of the defense program being suddenly laid before the American people, coupled

IRAN PLAYS WITH FIRE

Unless Iranian officials abandon their role of belligerency, the country may find itself the "owner" of a derelict billion-dollar property with the flow of pounds sterling into the Iranian treasury ended. Iran's present course may throw the 80,000 Iranian employees of the oil company out of work and threatens political and economic chaos. If Russia cannot make capital of that kind of situation, she is slipping badly.

The headlong plunge into nationalization, which began with the political assassination of an Iranian premier who wanted to go slow, seems to have been undertaken without any plans, although Iranian officials may have been following the example of the London socialists. No arrangements for transfer or compensation were worked out with the British. Iran simply made decisions, telling Britain "Take it or leave it."

TIME-WASTING PRACTICES

No man with an adding machine has ever computed how much of the time of Congress is wasted by roll calls. One roll call on a vote in the House means that the clerk calls 435 names, repeats some of them, and records the answers of members present. This takes approximately 40 minutes.

In the 96-member Senate it doesn't take so long, but a roll call, preceded by a quorum call, uses up 25 minutes. On some days either branch may have quite a number of votes on resolutions, amendments, appeals from parliamentary rulings, and so a quorum roll call has to be taken whenever a member suggests the absence of a quorum.

It is difficult to imagine anybody running a modern business so inefficiently. Thomas A. Edison invented an automatic roll call machine 82 years ago. Since then 25 of the 48 states have installed such machines in their legislatures. The other 23 states aren't necessarily backward. In states with legislatures of comparatively few members roll calls waste little time. But it is obvious Congress needs such a device.

There is little prospect that Congress will install one. An automatic and almost instantaneous roll call machine would deprive members of the privilege of calling for a voice vote on questions they don't want to be recorded on. And this type of voting is not always to be condemned. There are issues in which powerful pressure groups are prepared to retaliate viciously against Congressmen who vote their convictions.

Not all the time wasted, however, is devoted to calling the roll. In practice there is rarely a quorum present. When the question of a quorum is raised, there is a play while members traipse in from the Senate and House office buildings, the halls and the cloak rooms, answer to their names, and disperse as soon as possible. As the greater part of the work of members of Congress is done off the floor, such proceedings are not as bad as they look.

Trenton Youths Plead Guilty To Burglary Charge

Navy but was punished for being AWOL. Both defendants had records, Chief Davis told Judge Keller. The attorney for the two defendants asked that leniency be shown because both youths had served time in New Jersey, but Judge Keller said that he had no other alternative than to commit them to White Hill, and added that he could have sentenced them to the penitentiary.

Edward Lawson, an automotive wholesaler, of Stroudsburg, Pa., was before Judge Keller on Tuesday on an appeal from an arrest for speeding on the Bethlehem Pike on the morning of April 22, at 11.05, when he was arrested by Trooper Frederick Christian, of the Quakertown sub-station, of the State Police. Judge Keller listened to the testimony and adjudged Lawson guilty and imposed a fine of $10 and costs. Trooper Christian testified that he clocked Lawson, for three-tenths of a mile, at 70 miles per hour.

The case of Herbert Lieberman, of Philadelphia, a wholesale clothing salesman, who was arrested for operating an automobile with the improper license tags, was dismissed by Judge Keller.

Lieberman was arrested by Trooper John McDonough, of the Quakertown sub-station, on the Bethlehem Pike, and appealed the case to the county court.

The defendant had five sample coats hanging from a cross bar in the rear of his company's sedan, and was headed for a western trip when he was stopped and arrested. Two of the defendant's own coats were on the rack. The arresting officer claimed that Lieberman should have had a commercial license tag for the automobile, because he was carrying samples.

Judge Keller intimated that the time of the court should not be taken up with cases of this type; that the case should have been appealed to the State Department of Revenue. Judge Keller warned Lieberman to be careful in the future and find out just what's what first, before transporting samples.

S. Joseph Griffo, of Perkasie, a tailor employed in a Blooming Glen plant, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller on Tuesday to a charge of driving while drunk on the old Bethlehem Road, near Applebachsville, on May 18, when he was arrested by Trooper Santa Serge, of the Quakertown sub-station.

Griffo was fined $200 and costs after he told his story on the witness stand—a story which Judge Keller described as "the truth." The court told Griffo that it pays to tell the truth on the witness stand.

Griffo stated that he was celebrating with a factory pal—Harvey Barndt—the birth of the Barndt's third youngster, the first boy. Griffo told the court that he had two whiskeys and several beers—one whiskey on the boss—and that he just couldn't hold it all. He told Judge Keller that he "never could handle whiskey." Griffo's car collided with a bakery truck on their way home, but no one was injured, and the damage was paid. Griffo said he thought the examination that the doctor gave him for drunken driving was easy, but the doctor said that he didn't pass it.

"They treated me fine, though," he told Judge Keller.

Judge Keller heard testimony offered by the Commonwealth on Tuesday in a forfeiture hearing involving a truck, a still and some mash that was seized from John Bishop and Silas Walker, on March 19, in a raid in East Rockhill township at the Bishop home. The case had been disposed of previously in court.

Judge Keller directed that the Dodge truck seized be turned over by the Sheriff of Bucks county to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for sale, and that the whiskey still and mash be destroyed by the Sheriff. The Bishop home was raided by State Liquor Control Board

Agents and officers from the Alcohol Tax Unit.

Robert S. Mooney, of Bristol, employed at the Fairless Steel operations at Morrisville, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller on Tuesday to a charge of driving while drunk in Bristol on June 16, when he was arrested by Patrolman John Dugan, of the Bristol police, near Pond and Market streets. He was fined $200 and costs.

Mooney told Judge Keller that he imbibed in about 10 or 12 beers and 8 or 10 whiskeys. He said that he is leaving the Morrisville work for his home in the mid-west.

The case of Mrs. Hazel Carver, of Philadelphia, a waitress, charged with non-support of a bastard child, was continued by Judge Keller until September, on condition that she pay a certain amount each week on an arrearage.

Marshall, Man of Mystery

with a bid to several outstanding and susceptible Republican leaders to join the Roosevelt cabinet.

This much is beyond question: never in the whole previous course of the Roosevelt regime had anything so electrifying, so bold, and, if we are to put the cards on the table, so sinister, cold-blooded and calculating, been tossed into the political arena, as this Bismarck-like proposal that we un-gear our nation from the ways of peace, and step forth into the international arena where one country after another was girding for inevitable war.

No individual has ever claimed authorship of that project. Granting that it cannot be proven this plan was entirely the brainchild of General Marshall, we will respectfully submit this proposition: that we have noted no other brain except Marshall's at work in either the Roosevelt or Truman Administrations which we consider to have the capacity to have worked out that scheme — the same fertile and uninhabited brain which saw almost at a glance the plausibility of the billions of foreign spending under the Marshall Plan, and simultaneously, their irresistible political and economic impact at home, giving President Truman his one faint chance for re-election in 1948.

As poets have noted, great brains have not always been put to great purposes, and in our admiration for the capacity of an intellect which can think in such mighty and unfettered terms, we must not lose sight of the fact that the ultimate purposes of whatever General Marshall has had to do in politics seem to us to fall into two small and narrow channels—first, to keep in office those presidents who had singled him out for their confidence and distinctions; and second, ever since 1941, to keep buried in the back ground what must be, from the point of view of George Catlett Marshall, the almost unbearable humiliation of realizing that his own part in the Pearl Harbor disaster was censurable and deficient.

Not for all the wealth of Croesus, we imagine, would any proud and able man voluntarily take upon his conscience such an onus of inadequacy, even of failure; and permit himself to be driven to such a point that he had to take refuge in most implausible loss of memory.

Marshall was deep in the conniving which went on as a preliminary to the Pearl Harbor episode. Not only was he author of the rearmament program of 1940 (regardless of whether he blueprinted the political phases of this program), but he also was close in the confidence of President Roosevelt during the ABCD period — the year or more before Pearl Harbor during which, as the testimony amply proves, representatives of America, Britain, China and the Dutch Republic played checkers with Japan in the Pacific Ocean, trying to force Japan into attacking the United States, and thereby bringing us into the war without the Administration having the onus of taking us in.

The "greater good" complex is one which mankind has used to justify the most devious courses of conduct, but even it wears threadbare at times, and we should imagine that part of the unassayable personality of this great behind-the-scenes factor, General Marshall—part of the strange and compelling urge which makes his character such a strange mixture of brilliance and failure—lies in his awareness of the constant threat of titanic collapse of his projects.

Just as the ABCD manipulations produced their desired result, that of Japanese attack, but on a scale and in an unforeseen direction which immobilized our Pacific defenses for months, and protracted the war possibly for years, so the Marshall Plan, for example, may eventually turn out to have saddled the American people with unredeemable debts beyond their capacity to carry, the Atlantic Pact may boomerang into disaster, and the placid sell-out of the Chinese people to the Reds, over which transaction General Marshall has been presiding for several years, may wind up confronting us with a hostile world of dimensions far beyond our capacity to conquer. where he got into a fight after he was accused of "short-changing" one of the customers at a sidewalk. John Henry Lucas, 22, of Trenton, N. J., who was accompanied by his fiancée, Theresa H. Marcus, said he gave White a $5 bill and that White short-changed him.

The defendant, who was six-foot-three, followed the smaller Lucas into the tent and, pushing a revolver into his stomach, demanded he return the "extra" dollar bill.

A fight ensued and the towering husky ticket salesman, after throwing the revolver at Lucas, fled.

Sgt. A. J. McCarr, of the Langhorne State Police barracks, who arrested the carnival worker, said the revolver was a German war souvenir and not in working order.

Two charges of wantonly pointing a fire-arm and aggravated assault and battery were dropped because the customer, Lucas, was not seriously injured and the revolver was not loaded or couldn't be used to fire since a part was missing.

Lucas testified the defendant had the dollar bill folded and that when he counted them out, there were four but that when he unfolded them there were only three bills.

turned to the Bucks county jail. Here he raised quite a rumpus and according to Warden Earl D. Handy dug a hole in the back of his cell. Warden Handy denied charges by the prisoner that he had been doused with water and beaten by guards.

Martin was defended by Attorney Charles W. Roberts, whom the Court appointed.

Judge Blester, after deploring Martin's unfortunate background, directed he pay a fine of one dollar if he returned the stolen goods, and to serve not less than 2½ years or more than five years in the Eastern State Penitentiary.

Summer Season Is Opened By Campers

Jones; Troop No. 67, Hilltown township, Walter Frantz.

After the vesper service, medical check in, and supper in the dining hall, the Scouts and Explorers enjoyed a swim in the beautiful Ockanickon pool.

This was followed by a campfire in Palmer Lodge where the troop camp leaders were introduced by Scout Executive Raymond W. Hoxworth, and the staff under the direction of Bert Scanlin and Ralph Stoudt, Jr., put on the playlet "Pokey Hunter" for the enjoyment of the campers.

The week is being taken up with real fun and will include swimming, life saving, first aid, craft work, nature and a program of adventure trails, Scout games, instruction yards in fires, tentage and knife and axe use.

Seven of the staff members have been trained at the National Training School. They include: Bertram Scanlin, director; Ralph Stoudt, Jr., and Frank Manton, assistant directors; Paul Miller, program director; William Serchak, nature director; Robert Marshall and Robert Heaney, of the Aquatics department.

This summer promises to be the biggest summer in the history of Camp Ockanickon and Bucks County camping. Over 900 boys are now signed up for the seven weeks of camp with an addition group taking part in the Explorer programs of the Council.

Visitors days are on Saturday from two to 10 p. m., and on Sunday from one to six p. m.

The Saturday evening council fire program is especially interesting to parents and friends of scouting with awards presented to the Scouts and units which have met standards of camping.

Red Cross Swimming Courses To Start Monday

The Bristol Chapter of the American Red Cross has closed registration for their summer swimming course. To date the enrollment includes over 700 children of Bristol Borough and Bristol Township. The Red Cross is pleased with the success of this swimming program which Mrs. Donovan Fagans is directing. Most of the children signed-up for the swimming courses when applications were distributed through the schools of the Borough and Township. These swimming courses offered free of charge are made possible by the Red Cross campaign of March. The Red Cross feels that swimming instruction is truly a method of saving lives as is the Blood Program. Members of the Bucks County Rescue Squad who have the job of pulling drowning children out of the water have said that it makes them fully realize the importance of swimming training. Although the clerical work involved for Red Cross workers is large, they feel they are working for a good cause.

Mike Rand, a student at Temple University, will be the instructor for the courses. He comes from Philadelphia and has been a certified water safety instructor for the Red Cross for two and a half years. Mr. Rand has recently completed

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

BY JOE ELBERSON

Big one... to Mrs. Robert Morrow, Radcliffe street, went the thrill and honor of landing what is probably the largest trout caught by a localite this season. The fish, a beautiful 19-inch rainbow, was taken from a stream last week-end while Mr. and Mrs. Morrow were fishing near Penn State College.

Not too good... a steady downpour which began early in the morning and lasted until mid-afternoon greeted Harry Bossler and I for the opening of bass season on the upper Delaware River last Sunday. When we pulled into our camp Saturday afternoon the skies were threatening. By early evening the first showers appeared. And Sunday morning when we opened the cabin door and looked down on the river we saw that it was rising. Although not too discolored the river went up two feet by noon on Sunday. We fished in the rain and by late afternoon on opening day we had taken eight fish, including two rock bass and a huge sucker which Harry landed.

Locally, where great fishing pressures are normally expected on opening day, there were far fewer anglers on the Canal, Silver Lake and Maple Beach than has been the case on previous opening days. And proportionately fewer fish were taken, there being none of any size reported so far.

Making comeback... Game Protector C. R. Kinley, New Kensington, reports: "Muskrats appear to have increased tremendously since this time last year. Complaints of damage done by these furbarers are numerous."

"I have noticed more rats killed on the highway this spring than in the last several years combined. In some instances muskrats have appeared in areas where there has been no sign for years. Recently, in late afternoon, I observed a pair of rats swimming and playing nonchalantly in a farm pond near here."

Local club notes... the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association will hold a black-buck shoot over the club traps located west of Bath Road at Silver Lake this Sunday, beginning at 1 p. m. Feature of the program will be a Lewis Class match, with practice shooting optional. All shooters are welcome to take part in the program. Shells will be available at the clubhouse... next Tuesday, July 10th, the same club will hold its third, big quarterly meeting of the current year at the Odd Fellows' Hall (second floor), Walnut and Radcliffe streets, beginning at 8 p. m. Features of the program, to which all sportsmen are invited, will include movies, refreshments and prizes.

Precautions... like swimming, woodchuck hunting is usually an invigorating, pleasurable pastime. As with the water sport, however, precautions are necessary. Otherwise recreation occasionally turns to tragedy.

Last summer, Pennsylvania's chuk hunting casualties totaled 4 fatal and 27 non-fatal cases. In almost every instance, believe it or not, the offending shooter testified, "I thought I saw a groundhog when I shot this person." Though cartoons picture backwoods humans so bearded and raggedy-clothed they resemble a shaggy animal it is difficult to imagine that the average whistle pig hunter actually looks much like the animal he seeks.

In the woodchuck season just opened (it extends from July 1 to September 30, inclusive, Sundays excepted) there two sensible precautions would reduce chuk hunting casualties to practically zero: Every hunter should wear white, bright red or a light-reflecting fabric, on the head particularly, so that he "won't look like what he isn't," and every hunter should make sure that his target is a woodchuck before squeezing off the shot.

Progress report... a visit on Tuesday to the brooder house of George C. Blintz, Sr., Edgely, where he is raising the pheasants for the Bristol and Edgely clubs, revealed a phenomenal growth in these birds in a few short weeks. They're now about eight times the size they were when they were delivered as day-old chicks. Completely feathered out, with tail feathers plainly visible, it will only be a matter of a few more weeks when these cocks will be distinguishable from the hens.

Good catch... Ed Green and Fred Cockett boated 32 fluke while fishing out of Tuckerton a few days ago. Ed says that practically every boat came in with a good haul.

D'ANGELO LEADS BATTERS; HAS 13 HITS IN 29 TRIPS

Anthony ("Chick") D'Angelo, of the Fifth Ward Sporting Club, is leading the batters of the Bristol Suburban Softball League. D'Angelo has made 13 hits out of 29 trips to the plate for a .448 average. "Lou" Pezzullo, second ward, is in second place with a .407 mark, two points higher than Ray Pierandozzi, of 3M's. Another .400 hitter is A. Lewis, also of the 3M's team.

"Jim" Major, of Auto Boys, is leading the hurlers with five victories and no defeats. Claude Deltzer, of Kaiser Metal, has a 6 and 1 standing with George Wallace, of 3M's, having won 8 and lost 2.

that more housewives are asking for bread since deliveries to homes have been curtailed, is Harriman Food Center. This firm is getting bread from Philadelphia bakeries. Officials of the local firm say that "Philadelphia can't keep up to the demand, however. Bread sales have increased in the stores here, since daily deliveries have ceased out of Trenton. We have asked for more from our wholesaler, but are just getting our usual amount."

KOREYVA WINS FIRST GAME FOR FIFTH WARD NINE

Stanley "Butch" Koreyva, leading pitcher of the Trenton League, finally won his first game in the Bristol Softball League beating Jefferson, 4-2, last evening on Memorial field.

Koreyva blanked the Jefferson team after the first inning. He allowed three hits and struck out nine batters. An error helped the losers to both their runs.

"Johnny" Clambelli's slow ball had the Warders popping up most of the evening but a bad third inning spelled the doom of the Jefferson twirler. He was nicked for eight hits with Koreyva having a single and double in two official trips to the plate.

"Smithers" Cordisco opened the fifth by getting on base when Onofrio dropped Lasprella's throw. Koreyva singled past third base. Cordisco stopping at third. On the throw-in, Koreyva went to second. Both Cordisco and Koreyva scored on a wild pitch. John Cordisco walked and was sacrificed to second by Gordon Fahey. Henry Liberatore singled to center. Cordisco crossing. Liberatore went out trying for second. Clotti to Lasprella. Pico also singled but D'Angelo grounded out.

Jefferson passed up a scoring chance in the fifth. Palumbo hit a long blow to right but went out trying for three bases on a perfect relay. S. Cordisco to J. Cordisco to Fahey. Ennis followed with a base hit but the rally died as Lasprella struck out.

CROYDON A. C. WINS SIX GAMES IN ROW

Cornwells Heights, July 6—Croydon A. C. won, its sixth straight game of the Bristol Youth League last evening, downing the Bensalem Sporting Club, 4-1, on Hansell's field.

It was a scoreless affair until the sixth inning with both Dick Orner and Jack Weaver doing an excellent job on the hill.

Weaver had allowed but two hits when Croydon broke loose. Four runs counted on walks to Kaizer and Rappo, a fielder's choice by Bill Moll and doubles from the bats of Lou Loeffler and Joe Dominick. Orner had permitted but one hit, a single by Harry Robinson, and fanned seven when Bensalem broke into the scoring column. Bowman singled to left and after Struble and Crowthers fanned, Curran laced a two-bagger to score Bowman.

NEWTOWN, July 6—Winning its third straight game, Voltz-Texaco continued to set the pace of the second half of the Tri-County Baseball League. The gasmen beat Newtown, 7-6, last evening on the latter's field.

Paul Cervellero was the winning moundman, chalking up his seventh consecutive hill victory. Cervellero played the relief role in the tilt, taking the place of "Jimmy" Morrell who was battered from the peak in the second.

Barney Ludwig played a big role in the Voltzmen's triumph, getting three out of four and driving home four runs. "Pete" Powlis came through with four for four and scored three runs.

This evening, Voltz meets Hilltop in a first-half playoff game on the Pennell field. The winner of this game will play Southampton for the first half crown, Monday evening, on the Newtown field.
